HEIR, 21, FOUND ON WALL LEDGE OF SANDIA PEAK

Ropes Needed To Remove Victim Of Fall During Scaling Attempt

FRIEND, 20, KILLED, TOO

Mother Worn Out After Aiding In Search

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 1—(UP)—The body of John Medill McCormick, grandson of Mark Hanna and heir to a publishing fortune, has been found in the wild Sandia mountains.

The discovery ended a search which was started a week ago today when Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, mother of McCormick, became worried when her son and Richard Whitmer, his 20-year-old companion, failed to return from a mountain scaling expedition. They had left home June 22.

Whitmer's body was found last Friday on a ledge on the western shield of Sandia peak. The second body was on a ledge on the almost vertical wall of the right fork of the Canon Del Agua, approximately a mile from where Whitmer was killed. The canon runs Northeast of the Sandia peak precipice, which was the youths' goal.

Ropes to be Used
The canon precipice is 1,500 feet high. Foresters said the body would either be raised to the rim or lowered to the floor by ropes. In either case it will have to be carried 10 miles to the nearest road. Frank C. W. Pooler, regional (Continued on Page Two)

DUFFY TAKES ACTION Attorney General Warns Of Reprisal Inquiry

COLUMBUS, July 1—(UP)—Seven Davey lieutenants indicted by Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy's special grand jury on charges of soliciting campaign contributions from state civil service employees pleaded not guilty when arraigned today.

They were arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Charles A. Leach, who gave them until July 16 to challenge validity of the indictments. It was anticipated that the grand jury's authority would be questioned on the ground that it functioned during two court terms. It investigated Ohio's parole and pardon system last winter.

Those arraigned were State Finance Director M. Ray Allison; J. Freer Bittinger, attached to the governor's office; Thomas E. Dye, assistant state purchasing agent; Daniel S. Earhart, tax commission attorney; Charles O. Wilson, tax commission employee; J. L. Kennedy, state house superintendent, and Frank Mowery, state building superintendent.

Each was permitted to sign his own bond.

COLUMBUS, July 1—(UP)—A warning that reprisals against witnesses who testified before Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy's special grand jury will be answered by indictment of those responsible was given by the grand jury today.

The grand jury recently investigated charges that state civil service employees were solicited for contributions to Governor Davey's campaign fund and returned indictments against seven Davey lieutenants. The seven pleaded not guilty when arraigned today.

The jury's warning came after information was presented that one of those indicted had threatened reprisals against employees (Continued on Page Two)

JURORS RESUME STUDY OF CABLE DEATH MYSTERY

CANTON, July 1—(UP)—The Stark county grand jury today resumed the investigation of the unsolved shotgun murder of Mrs. Deuber S. Cable, wife of a wealthy Canton contractor, on March 11, 1937.

Subpenas for the books of the Cable Construction Co., with which Cable is connected, were issued by Prosecuting Attorney A. C. L. Barthelme, who said no new indictments in connection with Mrs. Cable's murder were expected.

"We have, however, obtained much new information that we did not have previously," Barthelme said.

The case apparently was closed after Mrs. Theresa Ludwig, Cable's former paramour, committee suicide at Conneaut, O., on May 8. She left a suicide note stating that hired killers had assassinated Mrs. Cable.

Cable was questioned after Mrs. Ludwig's suicide but later was released. They once shared an apartment in Akron.

Joe Delays Bout With Maxie Baer

Detroit Bomber To Rest Until Next Year, His Co-Manager Says

CHICAGO, July 1—(UP)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis will not meet Max Baer in September and will do no more fighting this year with the exception of a few possible exhibitions, his co-manager, Julian Black, said today. "Joe has been working hard and needs a rest," Black said. "He has defended his title four times since he won it from Braddock a year ago."

Black said he had talked to Mike Jacobs, New York promoter who has an option on the Bomber's services, and that Jacobs had agreed Louis needs a rest.

Baer will remain as No. 1 challenger, Black said, unless he is defeated before 1939. He added that in the event Baer is beaten, Gunnar Barlund of Finland probably would be the next man in line for a crack at the title. Barlund scored a knockout over Baer's brother, Buddy, last March.

In the event Max Baer remains unbeaten until next year, it was understood he might meet Louis next Spring at San Francisco during the World's Fair or at Los Angeles.

Black also disclosed that Louis had postponed indefinitely a proposed vacation trip to Europe.

The champion and Mrs. Louis were to have sailed from New York next Wednesday. Louis was said to have postponed the trip so he could supervise construction of a new home for his mother, Mrs. Lilly Brooks, in Detroit.

Louis was to leave today for Detroit where he will remain a week and then go to Black's Summer home at Stevensville, Mich. He will remain there for nearly a month and then go to New York for the lightweight championship bout Aug. 10 between Champion Lou Ambers and Henry Armstrong, featherweight title holder.

Since he won the world's title from Braddock here June 22, 1937, Louis has defended his crown against Tommy Farr of England, Nathan Mann of New Haven, Conn., Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend Minn., and last week against Max Schmeling.

SENATORS OPEN PROBE OF OHIO STRIKE BREAKING

WASHINGTON, July 1—(UP)—Investigators for the La Follette Civil Liberties committee assembled material today from Ohio cities in support of their contention that citizens' committees were used as a "third party" to break last year's "little steel" strike.

Financed by $60,000 voted by the senate just before adjournment, Sens. Robert M. La Follette, Jr., Prog. Wis., and Elbert D. Thomas, D. Utah, will resume hearings about July 15. It is proposed to take a long-time view of the alleged use of citizens' groups by manufacturers and their associations and determine whether there is a general pattern of "inspired" activity including "back-to-work" movements and violent disorder to break strikes.

GRAIN EXPERTS BLAME FROSTS, RUST FOR SLASH

Excessive Spring Rains, Root Rot To Reduce National Figures

MARKET CLIMBS AGAIN

Utilities And Steels Go Ahead Of Others

CHICAGO, July 1—(UP)—Private crop experts today forecast a U. S. wheat crop of 979,000,000 bushels, almost 100,000,000 less than their estimate one month ago.

The estimates ranged from 1,003,000,000 bushels predicted by Nat C. Murray to the Miller-Shields forecast of 929,000,000 issued yesterday. The June government estimate placed the probable yield at 1,046,000,000 bushels.

Damage from early Spring frosts, black rust, and root rot caused by the excessive rains of the last month were factors responsible for the reduced crop prospects in the winter wheat belt.

Despite the reduced estimate this year's anticipated yield still is above the final 1937 harvest of 874,000,000 bushels and the 1928-32 average crop of 864,000,000 bushels.

Quiet Trading Boosts Market

United States Steel, which opened 1,000 shares at $56.50 up 1 1/2 cents, extended its rise by $1. Santa Fe Rose $2 to $35 a share in the rails.

North American reached $23 up $1.25; Consolidated Edison $28.25 up $1.37 1/2; U. S. Rubber $37.25; Montgomery Ward $42.87 1/2 up $1; Du Pont $121 up $1.25; and Chrysler $61 up $1.62 1/2.

service supervisor announced the body had been found by a party of Sandia and Isleta Indian scouts led by Marion Perce of the Indian service. Perce and Pooler were working together on the search. Pooler said two Indians climbed down the difficult ledge and examined the body. Neither knew McCormick, so identification was not positive.

Pooler refused to speculate on how McCormick, if it is McCormick's body, met death or how it happened that his body was a mile from the place where Whitmer, the more experienced climber of the two, had fallen to his death. There was no information on how long the body had lain on the canyon edge. Perce remained with his Indians at a remote camp in the mountains, and there was no statement from him.

Mrs. Simms, who stayed in the mountains almost continuously the first days of the search, was at her home last night, worn out with the strain of the hunt and the uncertainty of the fate of her son. With her when the news came from Pooler were her second husband, Albert Simms, an attorney, and her daughter, Mrs. Courtlandt Barnes Jr., of New York City. Young McCormick's father was the late Medill McCormick of Illinois.

Yesterday's search had centered in the Canon Del Agua territory because it was there that Patrolman William Murphy of Albuquerque and Dick Montoya of Bernalillo had seen a man Tuesday who hailed them from across a deep canyon. They were too distant to identify him. Later a shot was fired at him.

Not in Same Fall

Previously the sheer 3,000-foot face of rock that forms the west shield of Sandia peak had been checked and rechecked by mountain climbers until they were positive that McCormick had not died in the same fall with Whitmer.

The search was the most thorough possible. National guardsmen, under the personal direction of Gov. Clyde Tingley, set up camp in the mountains from which the hunt was directed. Expert mountain climbers were brought in by airplane from Colorado. They worked over the granite wall where Whitmer died, foot by foot. Airplane pilots covered the area from the air. Indian trackers, lion dogs and cowboys also were used.

The expert climber agreed the young men had attempted a climb much too difficult for them. They said the precipice was one of the toughest climbs they ever had encountered, calling for gymnastics rather than mountain climbing skill.

"A substitute third party has appeared in the shape of certain employers' associations," the senators said in an appeal to the senate for funds in addition to the $90,000 previously voted them. "The extent to which industrial associations have become active to accomplish collectively what the employer member is forbidden to do labor individually is under current examination by the committee."

Among the Ohio organizations already subpoenaed are the Canton Chamber of Commerce, Canton Development association, Canton Law and Order league, the Warren John Q. Citizen league, Trumbull County Manufacturers association, Mahoning Valley Industrial council and the Youngstown Civil Affairs committee.

Count would deny that he had made any threats. Scotland Yard men escorted Haugwitz-Reventlow directly to Bow street police court on his arrival at Victoria station in the crack overnight Paris-London express.

He was arraigned on a threats warrant which the Countess had obtained, and after a hearing of only a few minutes at the opening of the court day, he was remanded on the application of his chief counsel, Norman Birkett.

Thus it was apparent that a still somewhat mysterious dispute between the Count and Countess was a final one and it was expected that proceedings would be started formally and at once in Danish courts for a separation, which would lead to a divorce.

It was learned that the Countess already had put their two year old son Lance under the protection of the British courts and the Crown by having him made a ward in chancery. This means that until he is 21, the chancery court may direct his upbringing and his education. He is a British subject because of his birth here, though his father is a Dane and the Countess renounced her American citizenship last December to become a Danish subject.

WAR SECRETARY WELCOMES 2,000 BLUE, GRAY VETS

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1—(UP)—In the peaceful surroundings of rolling farm country, Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring today welcomed 2,000 surviving veterans of the Civil War on the once shell-torn and bloody battlefield of Gettysburg.

His address marked the formal opening of the 75th anniversary of the most bitterly fought battle of a war that pitted brother against brother, and threatened to divide permanently the states of the union.

Today, three-quarters of a century to the day after Lee's army of northern Virginia made its first attempt to dislodge Meade's union men from cemetery ridge—at the beginning of this last reunion of those who then were but boys garbed in blue and in gray—the secretary of war paid tribute to the courage and sacrifice of those who died for principles which they "sincerely believed to represent the eternal truth."

He bridged the 75 years since the North and the South blundered into battle here by citing the even greater struggle of later years to reconcile the country and forget "the greatest fratricidal war that ever rocked the American continent."

Speaking to those who struggled to build a united country, Woodring told the aged and feeble survivors of those blue and gray uniformed armies that "we of a later generation are greatly heartened by the inspiration of their achievements."

The addition will house two toilet rooms, a vestibule and a classroom for the first and second grade. At the present time a frame building is used for the two grades. This building would be sold.

ROUTE 23, SOUTH MAY BE OPENED LATE SATURDAY

Route 23, north of Chillicothe, may be open to traffic Saturday. Employees of the contractor are speeding work as swiftly as possible on berms in an effort to have it completed Saturday night.

The improvement includes four miles of paving. There has been on traffic over the road, which passes through Hopetown, for many months.

GYPSIES ESCAPE SHERIFF AFTER WRIGHTSEL THEFT

The sheriff's department was unsuccessful Thursday in its search for a band of gypsies, members of which robbed George Wrightsel, E. Corwin street, of $21.50.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said a second robbery by gypsies was reported Thursday from Hocking county. An aged man of South Bloomingville was robbed of $14.

YOUTHS LEAVE 'HOME'

County officers have been asked to aid in a search for three youths who walked away from the Children's home Thursday. Those missing from the home are Ora McWhorter, 17, Bob Rarey, 16, and Howard Stonerock, 16.

LEIST OBTAINS INFORMATION ON POWER PRICES

Carl C. Leist, solicitor, went to Columbus Friday to study electric rate schedules on file with the public utilities commission applicable to power for the operation of disposal plants.

Mr. Leist was instructed by council to make a study of rate schedules. The Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company recently submitted a schedule to council for the Circleville plant. Councilmen believed a schedule might be found that would be more satisfactory than the one offered.

JUNE RAINFALL TOTALS HALF OF NORMAL AMOUNT

Rainfall during June was less than half of the normal amount. During the month the precipitation amounted to 1.46 inches. Normal for the month is about three inches. There were nine rainy days. The heaviest rain fell on June 27, measuring 61 of an inch.

Highest temperature recorded in June was 91 degrees on the 23rd. The lowest, 52 degrees, was on June 29.

A steady rain drenched Circleville Friday.

CITY MAY REMOVE WEEDS, ASSESS PROPERTY OWNER

Residents who refuse to cut weeds around their property may discover them cut by service department employees and a charge made on the tax duplicate. L. E. Miller, service director, warned Friday.

Mr. Miller said four workers of the service department are now mowing weeds along alleys and streets. More men will be added to the crew next week. Rain halted the work Friday.

"Persons should take enough interest in their property to cut the weeds and cooperate in our clean-up campaign," Mr. Miller said.

GEORGIA CHILD SHOT DOWN FOR $900 INSURANCE

Father Admits That Two Girls Drew Straws To Decide Slayer

CONFESSIONS OBTAINED

Plotted Several Weeks,
Police Charge

WAYCROSS, Cal., July 1—(UP)—The slaying of a 10 year old boy by one of two girls who, directed by the child's father, had drawn straws to see which one would do it, was revealed today by Solicitor General John S. Gibson.

The girls, waitresses in the roadhouse of Harvey Nelson, 40, father of the victim, and Nelson, were under arrest. Gibson said he had obtained a confession from Nelson, which said that he, Verna Mae Clark, 18, and Mary Kent 17, had plotted to kill the boy, known as "J. C." in order to collect $900 insurance on his life.

The confession climaxed two months of investigation into the mysterious slaying of the boy last April 26. Authorities described the crime, citing the father's confession, as follows:

The three had plotted for many weeks on ways to dispose of "J. C." They agreed that the girls should draw straws to decide who should be the actual slayer and also agreed on the division of the money.

The child left the baseball field late on the day of his death, put away his glove and ball and went in to supper.

Watched at Table

As he ate, the three were watching, from windows and doors, every bite he took. Miss Clark, the confession said, having drawn the longer straw, had a pistol, loaded and cocked. The child finished his supper, walked out to the porch. A shot rang out and he fell dead.

All three denied the actual shooting. Miss Clark said the father fired the gun.

Nelson, a backwoodsman, a native of Douglas, Ga., came here with Miss Clark and his family to set up a roadhouse. His wife died two years ago and he was charged with murdering her. During the trial, it was testified that he had beaten her two days before her death. He was sentenced to 20 years for manslaughter, but has been free on bail under appeal.

Nelson had told police earlier that his son accidentally shot himself through the chest. He has been held, but the two girls were implicated only recently.

Under the terms of the agreement, Nelson was to have received the largest share of the insurance. Miss Kent was to have gotten $200. Nelson promised to pay the $90 still due on Miss Clark's car. The father also was to have paid the boy's funeral expenses, keeping what remained of the $700.

Fell on Face

"Verna Mae took the pistol," confessed according to police, "went on the back porch and squatted near the wall. When J. C. finished and started out on the back porch, Verna Mae fired the shot. He fell on his face."

Nelson broke down several times,

In some ways, acting in pictures is a whole lot like any other line of work. The bigger you get, the easier they make it for you. The big actor has his part written to fit him, but the little actor has'ta make himself fit the part.

One time I got a part in a picture and I told the director to give me the script so I could study my lines. The director says, "That won't be necessary—you're playin' the part of the woman's husband and you never do get a chance to say anything."

Rain to Help Corn, Delay Wheat Harvest

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Ashville, Phone 79

It is raining here this morning, but one of those easy slow kind, that soaks in and does a lot of good to all kinds of vegetation, especially to the hundreds of acres of that small corn which needs stretching up. Enough moisture and warm weather will cure it. But wheat harvesting will be stopped for a couple days if the rain continues. About 1,000 to 1,200 bushels of wheat were received by each elevator here Thursday and as a general average the quality was good, but moisture ran from 2 to 6 percent too high and must be passed through the dryer before shipment.

Beavers Busy

William Beavers, candidate for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner was "circulating around" among the boys here and just how much of his circulating stuck for him, we'll know after August 9. Mr. Beaver told us he was a candidate for commissioner two years ago when Ralph May and John Keller were nominated by only 64 and 66 votes above him so the defeat was not so bad, and he's trying it again for the last time, if he goes down again. This third time down when in deep water, they say, is bad.

Appointment at Park

We had an appointment to be out at the park Thursday evening at 7:30, not later, to referee that new band marching stuff, but the smell of that chicken at the U. B. church basement got our mind all off the band and was late by half an hour. But all the band gang were there marching away and doing a fine job of it and the drum major with his two young lady escorts, was strutting his stuff. This is something entirely new and different (copyrighted we think) and you'll miss a lot by not seeing this outfit in action during the 11 o'clock parade next Monday, July 4. Everything is in good shape and ready to go and if the weather man hands us the right kind of deal it'll be a Big Day, glorious, too, if you choose.

Back to Work

Met our young friend Charlie

Coon on his way back to Washington after a month's outing from his work in one of the government departments. Just a recent event has made him a granddad at 53 and that's not so bad, Charles belongs to the Herby Hoover crowd, and not caring to start anything, forgot all about politics. George Coon, a long while ago, Charlie's grandfather and Republican, was trustee of his home township, Madison, for many years. And most everybody knows that he must have been one, or next to an angel, to get elected to a trusteeship in Madison. Democrats in Madison didn't do things that way.

TO YOUNGSTERS

CHILDREN: Next Monday is the Fourth of July. Older folk expect you to have fun, but be careful. Fortunately in recent years there have been no serious fireworks accidents in Circleville. I hope this record is not broken. Ask some older person to advise you and be with you when you shoot fireworks. Listen to the advice they give you. If there is illness in your neighborhood take your fireworks to the country. Remember police have warned you the Fourth of July lasts only one day. The celebration is not to start several days before the Fourth and continue for days after. Persons who throw firecrackers from or into autos, public buildings or toward other persons will be prosecuted. Circleville has strict laws on fireworks and they will be enforced if necessary, officers have warned.

TO HORNBLLOWERS

MOTORISTS: There are a few of you who enjoy taking part in a horn chorus, and I hope you stage one of your concerts at a time when an officer is close enough to make an arrest. Residents of the downtown district have every reason to complain about the unnecessary noise at night. I have heard several of the concerts. One parked motorist will blow his horn, another will answer, then the chorus is in full sway. It is certain the residents of the district can obtain no sleep. Motorists should realize that this noise is absolutely unnecessary and purely a nuisance to persons living in the downtown district. I hope police are able to catch some of the motorists responsible for the racket and make examples of them.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MOTORISTS

DRIVERS: Many of you have a habit which is dangerous and discourteous to other car drivers. That is the practice of backing away from the curbing and turning around in the street. When you do this, you take your life and those of all other persons in your automobile into your own hands. Drivers of cars travelling down the street in either direction have no idea what you are going to do. They cannot be blamed for anything that may happen. Any person interested in watching this practice can do so by standing along any of the main streets in Circleville at almost any time of the day. Business and professional men who know much better, try to save a few minutes by back-then turning in whatever direction wish. A few more revisions in your

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

International spy scares in normal times do not "take" well in the United States.

During the period of our participation in the World war, when we were pretty cuckoo, we took spy stories somewhat seriously, although even then we were not as doty concerning them as European peoples were. Today, however, attempts to stir up an espionage sensation in our midst are pooh-poohed quite generally.

The recent big batch of indictments of supposed secret agents here from overseas "makes first page", to be sure, but it fails to excite the American public appreciably.

"UNHEALTHY"

Which is all to the good. A national spy complex is unhealthy, because it verges on widespread "nuttness."

It does in the United States, anyway.

Europe is a little different. There contacts are so close that an espionage agent can stand with one foot on his own side of an international frontier and his other foot on the other side, in spied-upon territory. We cannot be spied upon in this fashion except across the Canadian and Mexican borders, and no sensible American is afraid of spying from either of these two different directions.

A "RISK"

True, the theory is advanced that a European air fleet might sail across the Atlantic and bomb New York or that a similar Asiatic fleet might trans-navigate the Pacific and blow up San Francisco.

But who is so "bughouse" as to regard either of these risks as a reasonable possibility?

And what spy could furnish a future imaginable invader with any information relative to New York's or San Francisco's vulnerabilities with which invader is not already familiar?

SECRET GADGETS

We probably have some little army and navy gadgets which we think we are keeping secret against eventualities.

But the chances are that they don't amount to much.

In any event, each foreign embassy and legation in Washington has a military and naval attaché, whose job it is to discover, study and report on all such inventions. These attaches are on friendly professional terms with our own experts, and they exchange ideas and information. We learn what their home folks are doing; they learn what we're doing. There isn't a daily driving habits would mean that you would no longer park too close to alleys, try to beat traffic lights, pass other cars on curves, and do other dangerous practices.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL RESIDENTS

FOLK: Sheriff Charles Radcliff brings this warning to you: "Have nothing to do with any gypsies that may appear in your neighborhood." A Circleville man lost more than $20 this week when he was tricked into going too near a car carrying several members of a band of the roaming persons. Even if gypsies are arrested identification is difficult and it is almost impossible to regain what has been lost. Most of the rovers will take anything on which they can put their hands, so it might be a good thing to put your poultry under lock and key at night. When gypsies drive their cars on your property—if you have telephones—call the sheriff. Be certain to write down license numbers of any strange cars that you might observe. The only way to make gypsy bands stay away from our county is by bringing about their arrest anytime they overstep the highways on which they have rights. They do not have the right to trespass on private property, and neither do they have a right to steal money and other things. Help break up their thievery by calling the sheriff or police officials if you see any of the bands.

TO HIGHWAY USERS

AUTOISTS: Authorities are pleased that motorists have been observing the flasher signal at Routes 22 and 104 as well as they have been. The flasher has been installed at the dangerous corner in an effort to reduce the number of accidents occurring there. Members of the sheriff's office believe that more care by autoists will result in fewer collisions and fewer deaths. City and county residents owe a vote of thanks to highway officials who were responsible for erection of the light. Only one arrest has been necessary so far because of failure to observe the flasher. I hope there will not have to be any more drivers ordered into court.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTSMEN

FRIENDS: The national crow shoot held in Pickaway county last Saturday convinced local sportsmen that this district has more than its share of the black robbers. The twelve contestants killed 36 crows in one hour and called hundreds to their blinds. Pickaway countians are losing out on a lot of fine shooting by not taking crow hunting more seriously. A crow hunters club should be organized in the county to promote the sport. There are numerous sportsmen who would join. Cutting the crow population of this county would be the greatest step toward restoration of wildlife.

TO RESIDENTS

DEAR FOLK: Have you ever noticed the weeds in the vacant lot you own or around your property? Service Director L. E. Miller is conducting a cleanup campaign in the alleys and is cutting weeds. There is nothing more unsightly than a vacant lot in a city on which the weeds have been permitted to hold full sway. Residents should cooperate with the service director in the general city cleanup.

Camp Life Good for All, Declares Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE SUMMER camp for the young—it's too bad there aren't some for the old—has become such a well established institution that it has as much of a place in the routine of American life as the school in winter.

As to the question whether it is "good" for the children, I don't think there can be any doubt about that. After all, we were not designed to live in houses. It was only after we got hairless and weak and lost all our natural protection that we sought shelter indoors. I agree that our superior mentality and ingenuity in designing protection and heat, and the other appurtenances of indoors, have added to the length of human life and that we have better health and more comfort, especially in the feet, than the naked savage in the woods. The legend of the health of the primitive brute is very easy to explode.

But a stretch of outdoor life in the summer is swell for anybody's health—mental, moral and physical. There is no country in the world so favored as North America for this sort of life. European countries are cold and rainy in the summer or overcrowded, so that it is next to impossible to find a camping site. We have limitless woods galore, lush with natural beauty.

Take Precautions

In sending boys and girls to camp, I advise the same preliminary precautions as when they are going to school. Each one should be vaccinated against diphtheria, typhoid fever and smallpox. In camp, typhoid fever is the most important because, although camp directors are very careful about their water and milk supply, slip-ups will occur, and individual prophylaxis is the safest way.

The beginner in camp will learn not only a great deal of woods lore but also hygienic lore—first aid, emergency treatment, artificial respiration.

We just had an example of the proficiency of the Boy Scout's training when in my own city several persons were struck by lightning on a golf course. Boy Scouts were in the crowd and immediately began carrying out artificial respiration by the approved prone pressure method. One man's life was undoubtedly saved by their knowledge and promptness.

Probably the best all round exercise for all parts of the body is swimming, and all camps make a specialty of that. There is no better appetizer than open air, no better cure for insomnia than sleeping under the stars. Young people need neither appetizer nor hypnotic, fortunately, but for their elders who are troubled that way, I recommend two weeks in the woods.

Camp directors should see, however, that the camp routine avoids undue fatigue. School is a strenuous period and the camp should be a builder-upper.

CHAPTER 47

BILL BARON and the officers were riding in three cars, and by agreement they kept close together. They could be seen from the ranch house area about a mile before they entered the big gate.

When they drove up, Bill knew instantly that the smugglers had been warned. He saw two carry-ping peculiar uniforms—burly sacks wrapped around what he knew to be faces—and hastening toward automobiles.

"There's only one road out of here!" Bill spoke quickly to the border patrol man. "Turn that last car sideways, it'll block the road and bottle them up."

The smugglers quickly discovered that, too. Their leader shouted something, and those near him hastened back to the store room, at the rear of Ellen's house.

"There they are! Some of them at least!" Bill indicated, keeping his voice subdued. "They've got to get here any way. We won't let 'em out. We'll wait for 'em. Mr. McIntyre: they ought to know they're trapped. They'll surrender."

Older McIntyre shook his head, doubtfully. Bill Baron, he realized, was not experienced at dealing with smugglers of narcotics and alien men.

"We'll hope," the officer agreed. So far, their arrival and the running of the smugglers had gone un-noticed by the majority of the fiesta crowd. For one thing it was now past seven o'clock and although not yet dark, twilight had set in. As for two days there had been a certain amount of constant movement and milling around outside anyway, in the normal process of making merry.

"Oyez, uteul!" Bill called in Spanish to one hastening man. "Wait a minute, please."

The man ignored him, darted inside the storeroom door.

Three others followed. So far the officers had made no belligerent move, no show of guns or force. There were several hundred people, scattered over an acre or so of ground. It wouldn't do to burst in and risk a gun battle.

An officer suddenly pointed up the steep hill back of Ellen's house.

"Look!" he exclaimed. "Two of them are already skipping! On foot!"

"Let them go," McIntyre ordered. "That'll be simply a couple of the aliens. We want the smugglers themselves—with the evidence to convict them. Baron, where's that leader you recognized? You see him?"

"I'll gamble he's already in the storeroom. If they were warned, they would all stick together. They'll nearly all be in there, I bet."

"But they'll be two or three to our one, with their aliens!" McIntyre cried. "They'll try to fight their way out, Baron, as sure as the devil!"

"I'll talk with them," Bill suddenly decided.

In that instant he saw old Buckshot Brown squatting beside a rock beyond the storeroom. And Buckshot was waving and motioning toward the house—obviously a warning.

Nevertheless, Bill reasoned that a bold move might be the best one. Moving, then, as if he didn't know or suspect that anything was amiss, and showing no gun, he stepped away from the officers. "Edge back behind the cars, men," he suggested in low tone, as he started away. "Just in case." He knew the cars would be some protection from bullets.

He ambled toward the storage house and had moved to within 50 feet of it when he saw a quick motion inside a dust-dimmed window. He realized his danger and waited at once.

"You gentlemen know what's up," he said distinctly, in Spanish, loud enough to be heard inside. "You can help avoid bloodshed. Somebody will be killed. The American border patrol is here. I ask you to surrender quietly, and not disturb the fiesta or endanger innocent people. It can only be harder on you later, if you do resist."

The answer came at once.

Crack! A gun inside barked at him. As if the shot had been an electric button touching off a salvo, the officers' own guns responded then. Those border patrolmen were experienced at this game. They had known precisely what to expect.

Bill had not been hit, but he dropped flat to the ground. Unquestionably that saved his life, for the smugglers turned their attention to the patrol attack.

Of course the roar of the guns was heard in the front area and commanded instant attention and alarm. But McIntyre had anticipated that.

He had crouched behind the foremost car, and he dashed away now—exposing himself dangerously—and herded the fiesta crowd back to the front of Ellen's main ranch home. That put them out of line of the shooting.

"YOU—you men there—take charge here at once and keep all these people away from the rear of the house!" McIntyre roared his command at a little knot of amazed ranchers. "The border patrol is in charge. There are smugglers out there. Keep these people back until the fighting is all over."

There were cries of alarm, men running, asking questions, cursing. Curious women hurried up, gripped with unknown fear.

But under McIntyre's guidance the group was kept under control, except for a few sundry cowboys and others who had not been in the main area. They came running, some of them acquiring guns as if from thin air because a borderland cowboy still clings to his pistols.

McIntyre hurried to them, signaling and calling to each in turn. His official manner and his patrol uniform enabled him to command respect. Crisply he informed them what was happening, ordered the armed ones to join in the attack on the smugglers who had converted the DD storage house into a virtual fort.

On the whole, the rapid work there was miraculous. But for Officer McIntyre's level head and cool, deliberate actions, all sorts of tragedies might have resulted within those first five minutes. But ranch men, such as he had instantly deputized, seldom get stampeded.

On the other hand, no one had yet had an opportunity to inform or warn those inside Ellen's home. Events outside had moved with great rapidity.

Bill still lay prone, motionless, with bullets flying both ways above him. His face was turned toward the officers' cars, and he also could see the rear of the main house. He saw at least one officer throw up his arms and fall back, dead or badly wounded. He heard Buckshot Brown's rifle crack a time or two, then heard Buckshot shouting in high tone.

In that instant Ellen Dale herself dashed out her back door.

Of course, the girl was curious—and alarmed. She had done a normal thing when she heard shooting. She was mistress of the rancho. She was the hostess. Other women inside, including the Mexican servants, had paled with fear at the noise of guns and a few in the front rooms had not even heard it yet or had not realized what it was. But Ellen had dashed outside.

Because the shooting seemed centered in the storage house, she unconsciously started toward it—which was the worst possible thing she could do!

Buckshot Brown yelled.

Bill Baron arose quickly, ran shouting to her side; and in the same instant saw old Buckshot coming.

Buckshot never got there. Bill caught a glimpse of the old man's body spinning drunkenly half around, saw him fall.

Then Bill picked up Ellen Dale—and carried her bodily as he had carried her one other night months before.

His first impulse was to go back to her kitchen door, but the small ranch pickup truck had been parked to one side there, and it was nearer. Even as bullets nipped at them he plunged for the truck, literally threw Ellen inside and jumped in after.

She had been numbed with fear during that 10 seconds or so. But as they both lay flat on the truck floor now, in order to be shielded by the low metal sides, she clung near him and choked out a query. He gave halting, sketchy explanation.

"Smugglers!" he gasped, breathing hard. "They—they were all over! Aliens! Everywhere, Ellen! Posing—as guests! In the storeroom, now. Border patrol."

He paused to breathe, and to put a protective arm over her back.

"Bill! . . . Bill!" She was incoherent in her anxiety.

"Lie still, Ellen! Flat. The patrol—they'll—scrap it out. It's awful—your fiesta . . . tie down. Flat."

He ceased talking, and Ellen sensed the witness creeping between them. She knew it was his blood. New terror seized her, benumbed her.

A few yards from them the spatter of rifles kept on.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

THERE ARE many different materials which can be used to edge a garden walk, among them metal strips, bricks, stones, edging plants or strips of lawn.

Still another edging material which provides permanence at moderate expense is pecky cypress wood. Used in strips, as shown in this Garden-Graph, pecky cypress boards will last for many years, especially if the boards and anchoring pegs are given two coats of creosote before being installed.

The pecky cypress boards should be four or five inches wide, and should be set down an inch or two into the soil. The strips should be one inch thick and nailed to stakes every four feet. The stakes should be two by four inches in length, to permit them to be driven down blow the frost line.

A dressing, several inches thick, of gravel, pebbles, lime chips or tan bark spread between the boards will make an attractive, yet practical walk.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

HOLDING UP OPTIONAL

REFUSAL TO part with your ace on the opening trick is not profitable in the long run if you do it every time as a matter of principle. There are times when it is better to use the big fellow at the first opportunity, especially if that involves the killing of some lower honor. On many occasions this promotes a lesser card of your own hand or dummy into the position of a certain trick taker, whereas a hold-up would limit you to one trick in the suit.

After an opening bid of 1-Diamond by South, North went to 2-Clubs, South called 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

West started the defense by leading the diamond 3, on which dummy played the 7, East the J and South the 2. A diamond was returned and won by West's Q. West returned the club 4, which East won with the K to lead a third diamond to West's K.

South's handling of his diamond suit limited him to one trick in it. He was therefore set one, with the loss of three diamonds and two clubs.

Dealer had failed to reckon the value of his 10 and 9 and in so doing lost the chance to gain two diamond tricks. This would have been accomplished by winning the first trick with the A.

JOHNNY ALLEN BEJMA HELPING GETS ELEVENTH SAINTS CLIMB IN 1938 RACE IN A. A. CHASE

CHICAGO, July 1—(UP)—Oscar Vitt, first-year manager of the Cleveland Indians, today served notice on members of the Tribe's pitching staff that they must be ready to work in and out of turn in an effort to give the club its first American league pennant since 1920.

As the Indians came here to open a three game series with the Chicago White Sox, Vitt had demonstrated that "kid gloves" are not a part of his wardrobe and that there will be no pampered members of the Cleveland mound corps.

Vitt's bold policy was made clear yesterday at Cleveland as the Indians took a wild 10 to 9 decision from the Detroit Tigers to snare the series and maintain their three game lead over the second place New York Yankees.

Although Bob Feller, schoolboy right-hander, had gone nine full innings Monday against Boston Vitt sent him back into action against the Tigers yesterday. When the Iowa youngster faltered in the eighth inning Vitt called on his other right-handed ace, Johnny Allen, for relief duty. Allen had faced the Tigers in the first game of the series Tuesday.

To Allen fell the hero's robes. The fiery right-hander went to the hill after Feller walked the first two men to face him in the eighth inning and with the score 9 to 5 in favor of Cleveland. Billy Rogell, the first man to face Allen, tripled and two runs scrambled home. Then a double by Dixie Walker drove in another and the tying run was played on an infield out and a long fly.

Temporarily the "goat," Allen blanked the Tigers in the ninth.

When Hal Trosky fled out and Ken Keltner popped out in the Indian half of the ninth, it appeared the game would go extra innings. Then Frankie Pytlak tripled and up came Allen. He smashed a single to centerfield and the contest was over.

Allen was credited with the victory, his 11th straight of the season.

YESTERDAY'S HERO — Cy Blanton, Pittsburgh's forgotten man who hurled a three-hit game to pitch the Pirates into second place in the National league.

BEJMA HELPING SAINTS CLIMB IN A. A. CHASE

COLUMBUS, July 1—(UP)—Ollie Bejma, peppery little second baseman whose play has been instrumental in the great showing made by St. Paul, today shot the Saints back into the lead of the tight American Association pennant race.

Bejma was the hero of the season's most dramatic contest last night when he hit a home run with two men on to give St. Paul a 3 to 0 victory over Kansas City in a 12 inning struggle.

With two out in the 12th, Tony York and Leroy Anton singled. Then Bejma worked the count to three balls and two strikes before he hammered the ball out of the park to provide the Saints with the victory.

The contest was a great pitching duel between Marvin Breuer of Kansas City and Ray Phelps of the Saints. Until the 12th Breuer had allowed only four hits and prior to York's single he had retired 25 men in order. Phelps gave up 10 scattered safeties.

A double in the eighth inning with the bases full by Oscar Grimes gave Milwaukee a 6 to 4 victory over Minneapolis.

Columbus won its sixth straight game when it defeated the hapless Louisville Colonels 7 to 4.

HEIR, 21, FOUND ON WALL LEDGE OF SANDIA PEAK

Ropes Needed To Remove Victim Of Fall During Scaling Attempt

FRIEND, 20, KILLED, TOO

Mother Worn Out After Aiding In Search

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 1—(UP)—The body of John Medill McCormick, grandson of Mark Hanna and heir to a publishing fortune, has been found in the wild Sandia mountains.

The discovery ended a search which was started a week ago today when Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, mother of McCormick, became worried when her son and Richard Whitmer, his 20-year-old companion, failed to return from a mountain scaling expedition. They had left home June 22.

Whitmer's body was found last Friday on a ledge on the western shield of Sandia peak. The second body was on a ledge on the almost vertical wall of the right fork of the Canon Del Agua, approximately a mile from where Whitmer was killed. The canon runs Northeast of the Sandia peak precipice, which was the youths' goal.

Ropes to be Used The canon precipice is 1,500 feet high. Foresters said the body would either be raised to the rim or lowered to the floor by ropes. In either case it will have to be carried 10 miles to the nearest road. Frank C. W. Pooler, regional (Continued on Page Two)

DUFFY TAKES ACTION Attorney General Warns Of Reprisal Inquiry

COLUMBUS, July 1—(UP)—Seven Davey lieutenants indicted by Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy's special grand jury on charges of soliciting campaign contributions from state civil service employees pleaded not guilty when arraigned today.

They were arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Charles A. Leach, who gave them until July 16 to challenge validity of the indictments. It was anticipated that the grand jury's authority would be questioned on the ground that it functioned during two court terms. It investigated Ohio's parole and pardon system last Winter.

Those arraigned were State Finance Director M. Ray Allison; J. Freer Bittling, attached to the governor's office; Thomas E. Dye, assistant state purchasing agent; Daniel S. Earhart, tax commission attorney; Charles O. Wilson, tax commission employee; J. L. Kennedy, state house superintendent, and Frank Mowery, state building superintendent.

Each was permitted to sign his own bond.

COLUMBUS, July 1—(UP)—A warning that reprisals against witnesses who testified before Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy's special grand jury will be answered by indictment of those responsible was given by the grand jury today.

The grand jury recently investigated charges that state civil service employees were solicited for contributions to Governor Davey's campaign fund and returned indictments against seven Davey lieutenants. The seven pleaded not guilty when arraigned today.

The jury's warning came after information was presented that one of those indicted had threatened reprisals against employees (Continued on Page Two)

JURORS RESUME STUDY OF CABLE DEATH MYSTERY

CANTON, July 1—(UP)—The Stark county grand jury today reopened the investigation of the unsolved shotgun murder of Mrs. Deuber S. Cable, wife of a wealthy Canton contractor, on March 11, 1937.

Subpenas for the books of the Cable Construction Co., with which Cable is connected, were issued by Prosecuting Attorney A. C. L. Barthelme, who said no new indictments in connection with Mrs. Cable's murder were expected.

"We have, however, obtained much new information that we did not have previously," Barthelme said.

The case apparently was closed after Mrs. Theresa Ludwig, Cable's former paramour, committee suing at Conneaut, O., on May 8. She left a suicide note stating that hired killers had assassinated Mrs. Cable.

Cable was questioned after Mrs. Ludwig's suicide but later was released. They once shared an apartment in Akron.

Joe Delays Bout With Maxie Baer

Detroit Bomber To Rest Until Next Year, His Co-Manager Says

CHICAGO, July 1—(UP)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis will not meet Max Baer in September and will do no more fighting this year with the exception of a few possible exhibitions, his co-manager, Julian Black, said today. "Joe has been working hard and needs a rest," Black said. "He has defended his title four times since he won it from Braddock a year ago."

Black said he had talked to Mike Jacobs, New York promoter who has an option on the Bomber's services, and that Jacobs had agreed Louis needs a rest.

Baer will remain as No. 1 challenger, Black said, unless he is defeated before 1939. He added that in the event Baer is beaten, Gunnar Barlund of Finland probably would be the next man in line for a crack at the title. Barlund scored a knockout over Baer's brother, Buddy, last March.

In the event Max Baer remains unbeaten until next year, it was understood he might meet Louis next Spring at San Francisco during the World's Fair or at Los Angeles.

Black also disclosed that Louis had postponed indefinitely a proposed vacation trip to Europe.

The champion and Mrs. Louis were to have sailed from New York next Wednesday. Louis was said to have postponed the trip so he could supervise construction of a new home for his mother, Mrs. Lilly Brooks, in Detroit.

Louis was to leave today for Detroit where he will remain a week and then go to Black's Summer home at Stevensville, Mich. He will remain there for nearly a month and then go to New York for the lightweight championship bout Aug. 10 between Champion Lou Ambers and Henry Armstrong, featherweight title holder.

Since he won the world's title from Braddock here June 22, 1937, Louis has defended his crown against Tommy Farr of England, Nathan Mann of New Haven, Conn., Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend Minn., and last week against Max Schmeling.

SENATORS OPEN PROBE OF OHIO STRIKE BREAKING

WASHINGTON, July 1—(UP)—Investigators for the La Follette Civil Liberties committee assembled material today from Ohio cities in support of their contention that citizens' committees were used as a "third party" to break last year's "little steel" strike.

Financed by $60,000 voted by the senate just before adjournment, Sens. Robert M. La Follette, Jr., Prog. Wis., and Elbert D. Thomas, D. Utah, will resume hearings about July 15. It is proposed to take a long-time view of the alleged use of citizens' groups by manufacturers and their associations and determine whether there is a general pattern of "inspired" activity including "back-to-work" movements and violent disorder to break strikes.

Principal witnesses at the new hearings to last about two weeks. (Continued on Page Two)

Excessive Spring Rains, Root Rot To Reduce National Figures

MARKET CLIMBS AGAIN

Utilities And Steels Go Ahead Of Others

CHICAGO, July 1—(UP)—Private crop experts today forecast a U. S. wheat crop of 979,000,000 bushels, almost 100,000,000 less than their estimate one month ago.

The estimates ranged from 1,003,000,000 bushels predicted by Nat C. Murray to the Miller-Shields forecast of 929,000,000 issued yesterday. The June government estimate placed the probable yield at 1,046,000,000 bushels.

Damage from early Spring frosts, black rust, and root rot caused by the excessive rains of the last month were factors responsible for the reduced crop prospects in the Winter wheat belt.

Despite the reduced estimate this year's anticipated yield still is above the final 1937 harvest of 874,000,000 bushels and the 1928-32 average crop of 864,000,000 bushels.

Quiet Trading Boosts Market

United States Steel, which opened 1,000 shares at $56.50 up 12 1/2 cents, extended its rise by $1. Santa Fe Rose $2 to $35 a share in the rails.

North American reached $23 up $1.25; Consolidated Edison $28.25 up $1.37 1/2; U. S. Rubber $37.25; Montgomery Ward $42.57 1/2 up $1; Du Pont $121 up $1.25; and Chrysler $61 up $1.62 1/2.

HEIR, 21, FOUND ON WALL LEDGE OF SANDIA PEAK

service supervisor announced the body had been found by a party of Sandia and Isleta Indian scouts led by Marion Perce of the Indian service. Perce and Pooler were working together on the search. Pooler said two Indians climbed down the difficult ledge and examined the body. Neither knew McCormick, so identification was not positive.

"However," said Pooler, "we are practically certain that the body is that of Medill McCormick. The body is in such an inaccessible place that it will be impossible to recover it until late Friday."

Pooler refused to speculate on how McCormick, if it is McCormick's body, met death or how it happened that his body was a mile from the place where Whitmer, the more experienced climber of the two, had fallen to his death. There was no information on how long the body had lain on the canyon edge. Perce remained with his Indians at a remote camp in the mountains, and there was no statement from him.

Mrs. Simms, who stayed in the mountains almost continuously the first days of the search, was at her home last night, worn out with the strain of the hunt and the uncertainty of the fate of her son. With her when the news came from Pooler were her second husband, Albert Simms, an attorney, and her daughter, Mrs. Courtlandt Barnes Jr., of New York City. Young McCormick's father was the late Medill McCormick of Illinois.

Yesterday's search had centered in the Canon Del Agua territory because it was there that Patrolman William Murphy of Albuquerque and Dick Montoya of Bernalillo had seen a man Tuesday who hailed them from across a deep canyon. They were too distant to identify him. Later a shot was fired at them.

Not in Same Fall

Previously the sheer 3,000-foot face of rock that forms the west shield of Sandia peak had been checked and rechecked by mountain climbers until they were positive that McCormick had not died in the same fall with Whitmer.

The search was the most thorough possible. National guardsman, under the personal direction of Gov. Clyde Tingley, set up camp in the mountains from which the hunt was directed. Expert mountain climbers were brought in by airplane from Colorado. They worked over the granite wall where Whitmer died, foot by foot. Airplane pilots covered the area from the air. Indian trackers, lion dogs and cowboys also were used.

The expert climber agreed the young man had attempted a climb much too difficult for them. They said the precipice was one of the toughest climbs they ever had encountered, calling for gymnastics rather than mountain climbing skill.

"A substitute third party has appeared in the shape of certain employers' associations," the senators said in an appeal to the senate for funds in addition to the $90,000 previously voted them. "The extent to which industrial associations have become active to accomplish collectively what the employer member is forbidden to do to labor individually is under current examination by the committee."

Among the Ohio organizations already subpoenaed are the Canton Chamber of Commerce, Canton Development association, Canton Law and Order league, the Warren John C. Citizen league, Trumbull County Manufacturers association, Mahoning Valley Industrial council and the Youngstown Civil Affairs committee.

Count Provides $10,000 Bond in British Court

Count would deny that he had made any threats. Scotland Yard men escorted Haugwitz-Reventlow directly to Bow street police court on his arrival at Victoria station in the crack overnight Paris-London express.

He was arraigned on a threats warrant which the Countess had obtained, and after a hearing of only a few minutes at the opening of the court day, he was remanded on the application of his chief counsel, Norman Birkett.

Thus it was apparent that a still somewhat mysterious dispute between the Count and Countess was a final one and it was expected that proceedings would be started formally and at once in Danish courts for a separation, which would lead to a divorce.

It was learned that the Countess already had put their two year old son Lance under the protection of the British courts and the Crown by having him made a ward in chancery. This means that until he is 21, the chancery court may direct his upbringing and his education. He is a British subject because of his birth here, though his father is a Dane and the Countess renounced her American citizenship last December to become a Danish subject.

Unable to arrange in advance for a set hearing to answer to the warrant against him, the Count left Paris last night to submit himself to the pleasure of the court.

Conference Held

Scotland Yard men boarded the Paris express at Dover and accompanied the train to London. At Victoria station, there was a brief conference in the Count's compartment. Then he, the Scotland Yard men and a legal adviser of the Count left the train and dashed to an automobile, to drive at once to Bow street police court.

The Count, smartly dressed as usual, carrying gray gloves and an umbrella with his gray suit and brown felt hat, was pale and looked worried.

At Bow street—whence the Bow street runners, predecessors of Scotland Yard, went out a century ago to investigate the burglary in which Dickens' Oliver Twist unwillingly aided Bill Sykes—Chief Magistrate Rollo F. Graham-Campbell of the metropolitan magistrates' courts, was just about to hear the first of the daily assortment of drunk-and-disorderly and other charges which are the lot of the Bow street magistrates.

Birkett obtained permission to address the court and asked that the Count's case be heard at once.

WAR SECRETARY WELCOMES 2,000 BLUE, GRAY VETS

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1—(UP)—In the peaceful surroundings of rolling farm country, Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring today welcomed 2,000 surviving veterans of the Civil War on the once shell-torn and bloody battlefield of Gettysburg.

His address marked the formal opening of the 75th anniversary of the most bitterly fought battle of a war that pitted brother against brother, and threatened to divide permanently the states of the union.

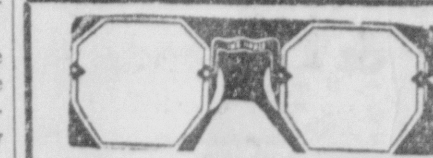

Today, three-quarters of a century to the day after Lee's army of northern Virginia made its first attempt to dislodge Meade's union men from cemetery ridge—at the beginning of this last reunion of those who then were but boys garbed in blue and in gray—the secretary of war paid tribute to the courage and sacrifice of those who died for principles which they "sincerely believed to represent the eternal truth."

He bridged the 75 years since the North and the South blundered into battle here by citing the even greater struggle of later years to reconcile the country and forget "the greatest fratricidal war that ever rocked the American continent."

Speaking to those who struggled to build a united country, Woodring told the aged and feeble survivors of those blue and gray uniformed armies that "we of a later generation are greatly heartened by the inspiration of their achievements."

GEORGIA CHILD SHOT DOWN FOR $900 INSURANCE

Father Admits That Two Girls Drew Straws To Decide Slayer

CONFESSIONS OBTAINED
Plotted Several Weeks, Police Charge

WAYCROSS, Cal., July 1—(UP)—The slaying of a 10 year old boy by one of two girls who, directed by the child's father, had drawn straws to see which one would do it, was revealed today by Solicitor General John S. Gibson.

The girls, waitresses in the roadhouse of Harvey Nelson, 40, father of the victim, and Nelson, were under arrest. Gibson said he had obtained a confession from Nelson, which said that he, Verna Mae Clark, 18, and Mary Kent 17, had plotted to kill the boy, known as "J. C." in order to collect $900 insurance on his life.

The confession climaxed two months of investigation into the mysterious slaying of the boy last April 26. Authorities described the crime, citing the father's confession, as follows:

The three had plotted for many weeks on ways to dispose of "J. C." They agreed that the girls should draw straws to decide who should be the actual slayer and also agreed on the division of the money.

The child left the baseball field late on the day of his death, put away his glove and ball and went in to supper.

As he ate, the three were watching from windows and doors, every bite he took. Miss Clark, the confession said, having drawn the longer straw, had a pistol, loaded and cocked. The child finished his supper, walked out to the porch. A shot rang out and he fell dead.

All three denied the actual shooting. Miss Clark said the father fired the gun.

Nelson, a backwoodsman, a native of Douglas, Ga., came here with Miss Clark and his family to set up a roadhouse. His wife died two years ago and he was charged with murdering her. During the trial, it was testified that he had beaten her two days before her death. He was sentenced to 20 years for manslaughter, but has been free on bail under appeal.

Nelson had told police earlier that his son accidentally shot himself through the chest. He has been held, but the two girls were implicated only recently.

Under the terms of the agreement, Nelson was to have received the largest share of the insurance. Miss Kent was to have gotten $200. Nelson promised to pay the $90 still due on Miss Clark's car. The father also was to have paid the boy's funeral expenses, keeping what remained of the $700.

Fell on Face
"Verna Mae took the pistol," confessed according to police, "went on the back porch and squatted near the wall. When J. C. finished and started out on the back porch, Verna Mae fired the shot. He fell on his face."

Nelson broke down several times,

In some ways, acting in pictures is a whole lot like any other line of work. The bigger you get, the easier they make it for you. The big actor has his part written to fit him, but the little actor has to make himself fit the part.

One time I got a part in a picture and I told the director to give me the script so I could study my lines. The director says, "That won't be necessary—you're playin' the part of the woman's husband and you never do get a chance to say anything."

Rain to Help Corn, Delay Wheat Harvest

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Ashville, Phone 79

It is raining here this morning, but one of those easy slow kind, that soaks in and does a lot of good to all kinds of vegetation, especially to the hundreds of acres of that small corn which needs stretching up. Enough moisture and warm weather will cure it. But wheat harvesting will be stopped for a couple days if the rain continues. About 1,000 to 1,200 bushels of wheat were received by each elevator here Thursday and as a general average the quality was good, but moisture ran from 2 to 6 percent too high and must be passed through the dryer before shipment.

Ashville Beavers Busy
William Beavers, candidate for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner was "circulating around" among the boys here and just how much of his circulating stuck for him, we'll all know after August 9. Mr. Beaver told us he was a candidate for commissioner two years ago when Ralph May and John Keller were nominated by only 64 and 66 votes above him so the defeat was not so bad, and he's trying it again for the last time, if he goes down again. This third time down when in deep water, they say, is bad.

Appointment at Park
We had an appointment to be out at the park Thursday evening at 7:30, not later, to referee that new band marching stuff, but the smell of that chicken at the U. B. church basement got our mind all off the band and was late by half an hour. But all the band gang were there marching away and doing a fine job of it and the drum major with his two young lady escorts, was strutting his stuff. This is something entirely new and different (copyrighted we think) and you'll miss a lot by not seeing this outfit in action during the 11 o'clock parade next Monday, July 4. Everything is in good shape and ready to go and if the weather man hands us the right kind of deal it'll be a Big Day, glorious, too, if you choose.

OPEN LETTERS

TO YOUNGSTERS

CHILDREN: Next Monday is the Fourth of July. Older folk expect you to have fun, but be careful. Fortunately in recent years there have been no serious fireworks accidents in Circleville. I hope this record is not broken. Ask some older person to advise you and be with you when you shoot fireworks. Listen to the advice they give you. If there is illness in your neighborhood take your fireworks to the country. Remember police have warned you the Fourth of July lasts only one day. The celebration is not to start several days before the Fourth and continue for days after. Persons who throw firecrackers from or into autos, public buildings or toward other persons will be prosecuted. Circleville has strict laws on fireworks and they will be enforced if necessary, officers have warned.

TO HORNBLLOWERS

MOTORISTS: There are a few of you who enjoy taking part in a horn chorus, and I hope you stage one of your concerts at a time when an officer is close enough to make an arrest. Residents of the downtown district have every reason to complain about the unnecessary noise at night. I have heard several of the concerts. One parked motorist will blow his horn, another will answer, then the chorus is in full sway. It is certain the residents of the district can obtain no sleep. Motorists should realize that this noise is absolutely unnecessary and purely a nuisance to persons living in the downtown district. I hope police are able to catch some of the motorists responsible for the racket and make examples of them.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MOTORISTS

DRIVERS: Many of you have a habit which is dangerous and discourteous to other car drivers. That is the practice of backing away from the curbing and turning around in the street. When you do this, you take your life and those of all other persons in your automobile into your own hands. Drivers of cars travelling down the street in either direction have no idea what you are going to do. They cannot be blamed for anything that may happen. Any person interested in watching this practice can do so by standing along any of the main streets in Circleville at almost any time of the day. Business and professional men who know much better, try to save a few minutes by backing then turning in whatever direction they wish. A few more revisions in your daily driving habits would mean that you would no longer park too close to alleys, try to beat traffic lights, pass other cars on curves, and do other dangerous practices.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL RESIDENTS

FOLK: Sheriff Charles Radcliff brings this warning to you: "Have nothing to do with any gypsies that may appear in your neighborhood." A Circleville man lost more than $20 this week when he was tricked into going too near a car carrying several members of a band of the roaming persons. Even if gypsies are arrested identification is difficult and it is almost impossible to regain what has been lost. Most of the rovers will take anything on which they can put their hands, so it might be a good thing to put your poultry under lock and key at night. When gypsies drive their cars on your property—if you have telephones—call the sheriff. Be certain to write down license numbers of any strange cars that you might observe. The only way to make gypsy bands stay away from our county is by bringing about their arrest anytime they overstep the highways on which they have rights. They do not have the right to trespass on private property, and neither do they have a right to steal money and other things. Help break up their thievery by calling the sheriff or police officials if you see any of the bands.

TO HIGHWAY USERS

AUTOISTS: Authorities are pleased that motorists have been observing the flasher signal at Routes 22 and 104 as well as they have been. The flasher has been installed at the dangerous corner in an effort to reduce the number of accidents occurring there. Members of the sheriff's office believe that more care by autoists will result in fewer collisions and fewer deaths. City and county residents owe a vote of thanks to highway officials who were responsible for erection of the light. Only one arrest has been necessary so far because of failure to observe the flasher. I hope there will not have to be any more drivers ordered into court.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTSMEN

FRIENDS: The national crow shoot held in Pickaway county last Saturday convinced local sportsmen that this district has more than its share of the black robbers. The twelve contestants killed 36 crows in one hour and called hundreds to their blinds. Pickaway countians are losing out on a lot of fine shooting by not taking crow hunting more seriously. A crow hunters club should be organized in the county to promote the sport. There are numerous sportsmen who would join. Cutting the crow population of this county would be the greatest step toward restoration of wildlife.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RESIDENTS

DEAR FOLK: Have you ever noticed the weeds in the vacant lot you own or around your property? Service Director L. E. Miller is conducting a cleanup campaign in the alleys and is cutting weeds. There is nothing more unsightly than a vacant lot in a city on which the weeds have been permitted to hold full sway. Residents should cooperate with the service director in the general city cleanup.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

International spy scares in normal times do not "take" well in the United States.

During the period of our participation in the World war, when we were pretty cuckoo, we took spy stories somewhat seriously, although even then we were not as dotty concerning them as European peoples were. Today, however, attempts to stir up an espionage sensation in our midst are pooh-poohed quite generally.

The recent big batch of indictments of supposed secret agents here from overseas "makes first page," to be sure, but it fails to excite the American public appreciably.

"UNHEALTHY"

Which is all to the good. A national spy complex is unhealthy, because it verges on widespread "nutteness."

It does in the United States, anyway. Europe is a little different. There contacts are so close that an espionage agent can stand with one foot on his own side of an international frontier and his other foot on the other side, in spied-upon territory. We cannot be spied upon in this fashion except across the Canadian and Mexican borders, and no sensible American is afraid of spying from either of these two different directions.

A "RISK"

True, the theory is advanced that a European air fleet might sail across the Atlantic and bomb New York or that a similar Asiatic fleet might trans-navigate the Pacific and blow up San Francisco.

But who is so "bughouse" as to regard either of these risks as a reasonable possibility?

And what spy could furnish a future imaginable invader with any information relative to New York's or San Francisco's vulnerabilities with which such invader is not already familiar?

SECRET GADGETS

We probably have some little army and navy gadgets which we think we are keeping secret against eventualities.

But the chances are that they don't amount to much.

In any event, each foreign embassy and legation in Washington has a military and naval attaché, whose job it is to discover, study and report on all such inventions. These attaches are on friendly professional terms with our own experts, and they exchange ideas and information. We learn what their home folks are doing; they learn what we're doing. There isn't a deal of secrecy about it.

WHY AMATEURS?

It is likely that any corps of amateur secret agents can outclass the official staffs of our diplomatic corps in our capital?

For example (to quote press stuff and indictments), the "red-headed hair-dresser" on the German transatlantic liner So-and-So? Of how much value is her spying apt to be?—in comparison with "dope" officially transmitted by Germany's diplomatically accredited attaches?

WORTH IT?

There is this distinction: German and Japanese and Italian diplomatic reports are according to official Hoyle.

Red-headed German girls, and Japanese fisherboats off San Diego, and questionable Italians in lower New York are engaged in espionage operations.

These folk are nuisance, maybe. But nothing to get up a temperature about. Don't let us permit ourselves to develop a spy scare over them.

Camp Life Good for All, Declares Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE SUMMER camp for the young—it's too bad there aren't some for the old—has become such a well established institution that it has as much of a place in the routine of American life as the school in winter.

As to the question whether it is "good" for the children, I don't think there can be any doubt about that. After all, we were not designed to live in houses. It was only after we got hairless and weak and lost all our natural protections that we sought shelter indoors. I agree that our superior mentality and ingenuity in designing protection and heat, and the other appurtenances of indoors, have added to the length of human life and that we have better health and more comfort, especially in the feet, than the naked savage in the woods. The legend of the health of the primitive brute is very easy to explode.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

But a stretch of outdoor life in the Summer is swell for anybody's health—mental, moral and physical. There is no country in the world so favored as North America for this sort of life. European countries are cold and rainy in the Summer or overcrowded, so that it is next to impossible to find a camping site. We have limitless woods galore, lush with natural beauty.

Take Precautions

In sending boys and girls to camp, I advise the same preliminary precautions as when they are going to school. Each one should be vaccinated against diphtheria, typhoid fever and smallpox. In camp, typhoid fever is the most important because, although camp directors are very careful about their water and milk supply, slips will occur, and individual prophylaxis is the safest way.

The beginner in camp will learn not only a great deal of woods lore but also hygienic lore—first aid, emergency treatment, artificial respiration.

We just had an example of the proficiency of the Boy Scout's training when in my own city several persons were struck by lightning on a golf course. Boy Scouts were in the crowd and immediately began carrying out artificial respiration by the approved prone pressure method. One man's life was undoubtedly saved by their knowledge and promptness.

Probably the best all round exercise for all parts of the body is swimming, and all camps make a specialty of that. There is no better appetizer than open air, no better cure for insomnia than sleeping under the stars. Young people need neither appetizer nor hypnotic, fortunately, but for their elders who are troubled that way, I recommend two weeks in the woods.

Camp directors should see, however, that the camp routine avoids undue fatigue. School is a strenuous period and the camp should be a builder-upper.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER 47

BILL BARON and the officers were riding in three cars, and by agreement they kept close together. They could be seen from the ranch house area about a mile before they entered the big gate.

When they drove up, Bill knew instantly that the smugglers had been warned. He saw two carrying peculiar umbrellas—burlap sacks wrapped around what he knew to be rifles—and hastening toward automobiles.

"There's only one road out of here!" Bill spoke quickly to the border patrol man. "I don't think last car sideways, it'll block the road and bottle them up."

The smugglers quickly discovered that, too. Their leader shouted something, and those near him hastened back to the store room, at the rear of Allen's house. "I don't see any more of them at least," Bill indicated, keeping his voice subdued. "They've got wise to us, by George! We didn't get here any too soon. But for God's sake let's hold out shooting, Mr. McIntyre! They ought to know they're trapped. They'll surrender."

Junior McIntyre shook his head doubtfully. "But, Baron, we realized we were not experienced at dealing with smugglers or narcoes and alien men."

"Well, hope," the officer agreed. So far, their arrival and the running of the smugglers had gone unnoticed by the majority of the local crowd. For one thing it was now past seven o'clock and although not yet dark, twilight had set in. As for two days there had been a certain amount of constant movement and milling around outside anyway, in the normal process of making merry.

"Oyez, yesteu!" Bill called in Spanish to one hastening man. "Wait a minute, please."

The man ignored him, darted inside the storeroom door.

Three others followed. So far the officers had made no belligerent move, no show of guns or force. "There were several hundred people scattered over an acre or so of ground. It wouldn't do to burst in and risk a gun battle."

An officer suddenly pointed up the steep hill back of Allen's house. "Look!" he exclaimed. "Two of them are already skipping! On foot!"

"Let them go," McIntyre ordered. "That'll be simply a couple of the aliens. We want the smugglers themselves—with the evidence to convict them. Baron, where's that leader you recognized? You see him?"

"I'll gamble he's already in the storeroom. If they were warned, they'd already all stick together. They'll nearly all be in there, I bet."

"But they'll be two or three to our one, with their aliens!" McIntyre cried. "They'll try to fight their way out, Baron, as sure as the devil!"

"I'll talk with them," Bill suddenly decided.

In that instant he saw old Buckshot Brown squatting beside a rock beyond the storeroom. And Buckshot was waving and motioning toward the house—obviously a warning.

Nevertheless, Bill reasoned that a bold move might be the best one. Moving, then, as if he didn't know or suspect that anything was amiss, and showing no gun, he stepped away from the officers.

"Edge back behind the cars, men," he suggested in low tone, as he started away. "Just in case." He knew the cars would be some protection from bullets.

He ambled toward the storage house and had moved to within 50 feet of it when he saw a quick motion inside a dust-dimmed window. He realized his danger and halted at once.

"You gentlemen know what's up," he said distinctly, in Spanish, loud enough to be heard inside. "You can help avoid bloodshed. Somebody will be killed. The American border patrol is here. I ask you to surrender quietly, and not disturb the nests or endanger innocent people. It can only be harder on you later, if you do resist."

The answer came at once.

Crack! A gun inside barked at him.

As if the shot had been an electric button touching off a salvo, the officers' own guns responded then. Those border patrolmen were experienced at this game. They had known precisely what to expect.

Bill had not been hit, but he dropped flat to the ground. Unquestionably that saved his life, for the smugglers turned their attention to the patrol attack.

Of course the roar of the guns was heard in the front area and commanded instant attention and alarm. But McIntyre had anticipated that.

He had crouched behind the foremost car, and he dashed away now—exposing himself dangerously—and herded the fiesta crowd back to the front of Allen's main ranch home. That put them out of line of the shooting.

"YOU—you men—take charge here at once and keep all these people away from the rear of the house!" McIntyre roared his command at a little knot of armed ranchers. "The border patrol is in charge. There are smugglers out rear. Keep these people back until the fighting is all over."

There were cries of alarm, men running, asking questions, cursing. Curious women hurried up, gripped with unknown fear.

But under McIntyre's guidance the group was kept under control, except for a few sundry cowboys and others who had not been in the main area. They came running, some of them acquiring guns as if from thin air because a borderland cowboy still clings to his pistols.

McIntyre hurried to them, signaling and calling to each in turn. His official manner and his patrol uniform enabled him to command respect. Crisply he informed them what was happening, ordered the armed ones to join in the attack on the smugglers who had converted the DD storage house into a virtual fort.

On the whole, the rapid work there was miraculous. But for Officer McIntyre's level head and cool, deliberate actions, all sorts of tragedies might have resulted within those first five minutes. But ranch men, such as he had instantly deputized, seldom get stampeded.

On the other hand, no one had yet had an opportunity to inform or warn those inside Ellen's home. Events outside had moved with great rapidity.

Bill still lay prone, motionless, with bullets flying both ways above him. His face was turned toward the officers' cars, and he also could see the rear of the main house. He saw at least one officer throw up his arms and fall back, dead or badly wounded. He heard Buckshot Brown's rifle crack a time or two, then heard Buckshot shouting in high tone.

In that instant Ellen Dale herself dashed out her back door.

Of course, the girl was curious—and alarmed. She had done a normal thing when she heard shooting. She was mistress of the ranch. She was the hostess. Other women inside, including the Mexican servants, had paled with fear at the noise of guns and a few in the front rooms had not even heard it yet or had not realized what it was. But Ellen had dashed outside.

Because the shooting seemed centered in the storage house, she unconsciously started toward it—which was the worst possible thing she could do!

Buckshot Brown yelled. Bill Baron arose quickly, ran shouting to her side, and in the same instant saw old Buckshot coming.

Buckshot never got there. Bill caught a glimpse of the old man's body spinning drunkenly half around, saw him fall.

Then Bill picked up Ellen Dale—and carried her bodily as he had carried her one other night months before.

His first impulse was to go back to her kitchen door, but the small ranch pickup truck had been parked to one side there, and it was nearer. Even as bullets nipped at them he plunged for the truck, literally threw Ellen inside and jumped in after her.

She had been numbed with fear during that 10 seconds or so. But as they both lay flat on the truck floor now, in order to be shielded by the low metal sides, she clung near him and choked out a query.

He gave halting, sketchy explanation.

"Smugglers!" he gasped, breathing hard. "They—they were all over! Aliens! Everywhere, Ellen! Posing—as guests! In the storeroom, now. Border patrol!"

He paused to breathe, and to put a protective arm over her back. "Bill! . . . Bill!" She was incoherent in her anxiety.

"Lie still, Ellen! Flat. The patrol—they'll—scrap it out. It's awful—your fiesta . . . lie down. Flat."

He ceased talking, and Ellen sensed the wetness creeping between them. She knew it was his blood. New terror seized her, benumbed her.

A few yards from them the spatter of rifles kept on.

Eleven Members of '98 Class Conduct Reunion

Country Club Scene of Meeting

Eleven members of the class of 1898 of Everts high school, Circleville, gathered at the Pickaway Country Club, Thursday evening, and enjoyed their first class reunion. Julius Helwage, the only living member of the board of education at the time the class graduated, was guest of honor.

The class colors of blue and gold were used in decorating for the occasion, the tables where the dinner was served being centered with a bowl of beautiful pansies, the glass flower. Vases of blue delphinium and yellow coreopsis were used on the table in continuation of the class color theme. Yellow and blue candles in crystal holders cast a soft glow over the service.

On the table was a large anniversary cake decorated in blue with the class numerals in yellow. The guests were called to the table by the ringing of the tardy bell which they so well remembered as ringing before each session at school by John Fohl, the janitor of old Everts building. At each place was a picture of the class member taken at the time of graduation mounted on a lace mat, with a knot of blue and gold ribbon on one side. Small placecards with bunches of forget-me-nots served to identify the almost forgotten pictures. The class motto, "On Through Industry to Fame," was displayed.

Of the original 24 class members, 20 are living. The 11 members present included Mrs. Marie Delaplaine Jarper, Zanesville; Mrs. Mae Prelice Mosure, Columbus; Miss Edith Rowe, Cleveland; Mrs. Minnie Ruck Williams, Toledo; John Durick, Columbus; Miss Ann Leis, Mrs. Minnie Leis, McCordy, Miss Jeannette Rowe, Mrs. Ros Thorne Pickens, Mrs. Helen Wron Wolf and Arthur L. Wilder of Circleville.

Mr. Dimick of Columbus served as toastmaster for the evening. A moment of silence in memory and respect of deceased members was observed, the opening of the program of formal talks. The four deceased members were: Fannie Pierce Iler, Scott Rader, Guy Nickerson and Edith Murphy.

In addition to the letter read from Miss Edith Mosure of Cleveland, a well known faculty member of the school at the time of the graduation.

Mrs. Eva Barkley Swan, Wichita, Kan.; Mrs. Mary Sweetman Beaver, of Peoria, Ill.; Roy Winstead, of Upper Darby, Pa.; Miss Mary Alice Stein of Worthington; Mrs. Sue Frybach Fleming of Columbus; Mrs. Maud Howard Verner of Ann Arbor, Mich.; Mrs. Madge Bell Rhines of San Diego, Cal.; Mrs. Elizabeth Rindsford Van Geist of New York City at present in Koln-Braunfeld, Hultzstrasse 9, Germany and Howard Rector of Fresno, Cal., sent letters of greeting to their classmates and expressed their deep regret at not being at the reunion. These letters were read during the evening.

The class song was sung, the words of which had been written by Mrs. Mosure of Columbus. Many humorous things came to light during the talks, one member of the class remembering just where each member had been seated during the last year in school. Miss Ann Leis read the account of the commencement exercises as published in The Daily Herald at that time. Mr. Dimick told many things of the teachers of the high school.

One interesting fact disclosed at the affair was that the school colors of red and black were chosen while this class was in school. A large picture of Old Everts was on display.

E. W. Phillips, Miss Sarah Conant, Miss Drum and Prof. Upton were faculty members in 1898. The class decided to have another reunion in five years.

U. B. Ladies' Aid

The June meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the United Brethren church was held Thursday afternoon in the community house, the younger people of the church furnishing the varied and interesting program.

The business and devotional hour in charge of Mrs. A. H. Morris, president, was opened with group singing followed with the scripture lesson read from the 7th chapter of Matthew by Mrs. E. S. Neuding. The yearly reports of the society were read and the reports of the convention held in the church, recently. It was decided to contribute to the organ fund for the church. It was announced that the next meeting would observe dollar day.

Mrs. James Pierce and daughter, Evelyn, sang "Trust in Jesus" for the opening number of the program. Joan Hawkes recited "Being Summer". A duet was sung by Dolores and Phyllis Ann Hawkes. Mary Katherine Stein sang a solo, "Trust in Jesus". A duet, "The Old Spinning Wheel" was sung by Beverly and Betty

THERE ARE many different materials which can be used to edge a garden walk, among them metal strips, bricks, stones, edging plants or strips of lawn.

Still another edging material which provides permanence at moderate expense is pecky cypress wood. Used in strips, as shown in this Garden-Graph, pecky cypress boards will last for many years, especially if the boards and anchoring pegs are given two coats of creosote before being installed.

The pecky cypress boards should be four or five inches wide, and should be set down an inch or two into the soil. The strips should be one inch thick and nailed to stakes every four feet. The stakes should be two by four inches in length, to permit them to be driven down blow the frost line.

A dressing, several inches thick, of gravel, pebbles, lime chips or tan bark spread between the boards will make an attractive, yet practical walk.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

HOLDING UP OPTIONAL
REFUSAL to part with your ace on the opening trick is not profitable in the long run if you do it every time as a matter of principle. There are times when it is better to use the big fellow at the first opportunity, especially if that involves the killing of some lower honor. On many occasions this promotes a lesser card of your own hand or dummy into the position of a certain trick taker, whereas a hold-up would limit you to one trick in the suit.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After an opening bid of 1-Diamond by South, North went to 2-Clubs, South called 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

West started the defense by leading the diamond 3, on which dummy played the 7, East the J and South the 2. A diamond was returned and won by West's Q. West returned the club 4, which East won with the K to lead a third diamond to West's K. South's handling of his diamond suit limited him to one trick in it. He was therefore set one, with the loss of three diamonds and two clubs.

JOHNNY ALLEN GETS ELEVENTH IN 1938 RACE

CHICAGO, July 1—(UP)—Oscar Vitt, first-year manager of the Cleveland Indians, today served notice on members of the Tribe's pitching staff that they must be ready to work in and out of turn in an effort to give the club its first American league pennant since 1920.

As the Indians came here to open a three game series with the Chicago White Sox, Vitt had demonstrated that "kid gloves" are not a part of his wardrobe and that there will be no pampered members of the Cleveland mound corps.

Vitt's bold policy was made clear yesterday at Cleveland as the Indians took a wild 10 to 9 decision from the Detroit Tigers to snare the series and maintain their three game lead over the second place New York Yankees.

Although Bob Feller, schoolboy right-hander, had gone nine full innings Monday against Boston Vitt sent him back into action against the Tigers yesterday. When the Iowa youngster faltered in the eighth inning Vitt called on his other right-handed ace, Johnny Allen, for relief duty. Allen had faced the Tigers in the first game of the series Tuesday.

To Allen fell the hero's robes. The fiery right-hander went to the hill after Feller walked the first two men to face him in the eighth inning and with the score 9 to 5 in favor of Cleveland. Billy Rogell, the first man to face Allen, tripled and two runs scampered home. Then a double by Dixie Walker drove in another and the tying run was plated on an infield out and a long fly.

Temporarily the "goat," Allen blanked the Tigers in the ninth.

When Hal Trosky fled out and Ken Keltner popped out in the Indian half of the ninth, it appeared the game would go extra innings. Then Frankie Pytlak tripled and up came Allen. He smashed a single to centerfield and the contest was over.

Allen was credited with the victory, his 11th straight of the season.

Yesterday's hero — Cy Blanton, Pittsburgh's forgotten man who hurled a three-hit game to pitch the Pirates into second place in the National league.

A swollen tendon which kept him out of the $50,000 Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs Wednesday, was reported to be better today and he may be able to start in the $10,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington Monday.

He is scheduled to begin an intensive drill tomorrow to work the soreness out of his leg. Arlington park officials said an announcement would be made after the Board of Stewards witnesses the workout.

'BISCUIT MIGHT RUN IN STARS, STRIPES EVENT

CHICAGO, July 1—(UP)—Seabiscuit, turf favorite, arrives at Arlington park from Boston today with 15 other horses owned by Charles S. Howard of San Francisco.

A swollen tendon which kept him out of the $50,000 Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs Wednesday, was reported to be better today and he may be able to start in the $10,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington Monday.

BEJMA HELPING SAINTS CLIMB IN A. A. CHASE

COLUMBUS, July 1—(UP)—Ollie Bejma, peppery little second baseman whose play has been instrumental in the great showing made by St. Paul, today shot the Saints back into the lead of the tight American Association pennant race.

Bejma was the hero of the season's most dramatic contest last night when he hit a home run with two men on to give St. Paul a 3 to 0 victory over Kansas City in a 12 inning struggle.

With two out in the 12th, Tony York and Leroy Anton singled. Then Bejma worked the count to three balls and two strikes before he
